London, Aug. 15.

Extract of a letter from Oxford, Sunday evening, Aug. 13. 1786.

"Yesterday at noon their Majesties, with the Princess Royal, and the Princesses Elisabeth and Augusta, arrived at Newnham, (about five miles from this city) the beautiful villa of Earl Harcourt, where their Majesties slept, and this morning they honoured the University with a second visit.

"Their Majesties and the Royal suite passed over Magdalene-bridge about one o'clock, through the high street, and alighted at the eastern gate of the public schools, from whence they were conducted to the divinity school, and there received by the Vice-Chancellor, Heads of Houses, and Officers of the University, in their proper habits. They were then ushered to the Sheldonian Theatre, which they entered at the large front door. A concerto on the organ was played by Dr Hayes as their Majesties entered. The King was seated in the Chancellor's chair, and the Queen and Royal children in chairs on a platform on his left hand.

The Vice-Chancellor then presented a very dutiful address from the University, congratulating His Majesty on his happy escape from the late attempt to destroy his sacred person, which his Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously, and returned an answer expressive of his good wishes for the welfare of the University.

"Their Majesties continued in the Theatre upwards of an hour, during which time all the Heads of Houses, Doctors, &c. were presented, and had the honour of killing hands.

"Next the Royal visitors proceeded to view Trinity, Wadham, and Lincoln Colleges, and several of the other public buildings, which had escaped in their former visit, for want of time. In Trinity Hall a cold collation and other refreshments were placed, which their Majesties partook of. After which their Majesties were waited on by the Mayor and Corporation, at their Council Chamber, where a very affectionate congratulatory address was presented, and graciously received, and, after killing hands, the honour of Knighthood was conferred on Richard Tawney, Esq; senior Alderman, and father of the city.

"Their Majesties, &c. then paid a visit to Christ Church College, and about half past six o'clock returned to Lord Harcourt's, at Newnham, where they again sleep, and are in a few days expected to visit his Grace the Duke of Marlborough, and others of the nobility in this neighbourhood.

"Their Majesties expressed the greatest satisfaction at the reception they met with; and the vast concourse of people assembled on this occasion expressed their happiness on seeing his Majesty's person safely escaped from the late horrid attempt to take away his life."

Sunday last, a thanksgiving prayer, on occasion of His Majesty's happy escape from assassination, was read in all the churches.

Saturday last being the anniversary of the birth-day of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, notwithstanding the absence of their Majesties from Windsor on their excursion to Oxford, the guns at the Castle were fired, and flags displayed. A ball was given, by order of their Majesties, to all the domestics in their house, and the towns of Windsor and Eton were illuminated on the occasion.

The illuminations on Saturday night were chiefly confined to the tradesmen of the Court. There was no disturbance in the streets, nor any attempt either of glaziers or partisans to compel the people to illuminate. The tradesmen vied with each other in splendour and taste. There were many elegant transparencies, but, in point of brilliancy and taste, the house of Weltje, in St James's street, was beyond comparison the best.

The Prince of Wales's birth-day was observed with more than usual demonstrations of joy. The illuminations in the west end of the town, Pall-Mall, and St James's-street, made a very splendid appearance, as did the Opera House, Coleman's Theatre, &c.

Other Princes have acquired names from various actions of their lives, but if the Prince of Wales pursues the noble plan he has laid down, he will acquire a name far exceeding all others; he will be called GEORGE THE HONOURABLE!

ODE ON THE BIRTH-DAY OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES. Aug. 12. 1786.

STROPHE.

IN Cambria's groves, on Mona's steep,
A troop of bards appear!
Their harps the spirit-minstrels sweep,
And hail a Prince supremely dear,
Their magic song,
Fair England's valets prolong;
And Scotia bids her caves retain
The votive strain,
To swell the verse to every distant ear.

ANTI-STROPHE.

Ilustrious George, tho' on that gen'rous breast,
The Cappadocian Star is worn;
Yet the pure heart in honour's jewel's dress,
Beyond the trophy shall thy name adorn;
And tho' no palace lifts her dome
To give protection to thy head,
The humble cottage is a home,
Where worth like thine shall feel no dread.

EPISTLE.

O hasten, Britons, to that roof,
To give of love the parent proof,
And hail that honest mind,
Which in its confidante worth esteems,
Rejects for right the toys of state,
Nor casts a wish behind.
Be tow'ring pride in tinsell'd toys array'd,
The lucid diamond needs no foil for aid.

We are happy to be able to inform our readers, from undoubted authority, that matters are amicably settled with Spain; and that, in consequence, Lord Walsingham, as Ambassador, and the Rev. Mr Dutens, as Secretary to the Embassy, will soon set out for Madrid.

The Count de Ferman-Nunez, the Spanish Minister at Lisbon, comes to London as Ambassador, and Don Yzquierdo as Consul-General, from Spain.

Lord Clarendon succeeds Lord Tankerville at the Post-Office; and Lord Hawkesbury succeeds, for life, Lord Clarendon, as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Lord Tankerville having resigned the Post-office, there is a report that Lord Barrington will be restored to that place. If it should be so, his Lordship's pension of 2000l. per annum ceases by agreement, and consequently becomes a saving to the public, during the time his Lordship is joint Postmaster General.

Yesterday morning some dispatches were brought to the Marquis of Carmarthen's office from Mr Eden, his Majesty's Ambassador at Paris, which are to be laid before the Privy Council.

Yesterday Colonel Smith, the American Charge des Affaires, in the absence of Mr Adams, had a conference with Lord Sydney, at Whitehall, on some dispatches received from America, by the way of L'Orient.

Lord Dorchester sails for Quebec next month to his government of Canada. His Lordship is to carry out full instructions relative to the disputes that have arisen touching the forts on the Lakes, which are situated within the boundaries of the American empire.

The American Loyalists are now receiving at the Treasury 30 or 40 per cent. (according to their merits) on the account of their losses in America.

The new arrangement of the Customs is so far forward, that it will be brought before Parliament early next session; and it is asserted, that, besides a large saving to the revenue, the business will be simplified as to enable a merchant's clerk of a year's standing, to transact every kind of business with facility.

The Augusta yacht is released, and gone into the Basin at Deptford, the Lords of the Admiralty having undertaken to settle the business with the Commissioners of Excise.

Private letters from Vienna, dated July 17, mention, that a libel having been published against his Imperial Majesty, arraigning him in the severest terms for his treatment of some officers; for the apprehending the author of which, the principal of the police at Vienna had offered a reward of 500 ducats; the Emperor who was then at Buda, in the course of his present tour, directly commanded that the reward for taking into custody the person of the author should be withdrawn; and that the copies of the libel in question, which had been seized by his minister, should be returned to the publisher, in order that they might have a fair and free circulation.

Three of the East-Indiamen lately arrived, viz. the Essex, Strover, Belmont, Stewart, and General

Coote, Baldwin, are from China; the Deptford, Gerrard, and Dutton, West, are both from Madras and Bombay. These ships are all reported to be full, and had very valuable cargoes.

The late commission sent abroad for the purchase of teas of the foreign companies will probably be the last. Sixteen ships are expected from China next spring. These, with others now on their voyage, and the vessels lately taken up, will be sufficient to supply the East-India sales hereafter.

Table of pay in the East India Company's service, to take place from the time of appointment, and the ship being afloat, and under a state of equipment, to the time of her out-clearance in the river, after arrival from her voyage.

By the last accounts from the East Indies, we learn, that the Mahrattas are at war with Hyder Ally's country, and that they had called on the British government in India to assist them; which unless they do, and that speedily, it is supposed the Mahrattas will join the French.—The Government have sent to England for instructions.

We also learn, that the Poonah government having issued an order to Mahdjee Scindia, to leave all his conquest on the Bengal side, and repair to Poonah, he, Scindia, had, in consequence, demanded from the king of Delhi, one crore of rupees, being, as he says, what he has expended in reducing his rebellious Rajahs. The king informed him, he could not comply with his demand, as he had it not. Scindia on this presented him a bill to sign, empowering him to collect the Chout; but the King answered, if he did sign it, it would be of no use, as the Rajahs would not obey it. Scindia replied, if he signed it as an acknowledgment, it would be sufficient; but the King would not do it. upon which, Scindia wrote to the Shah Zadda (Prince) who was at Lucknow, telling him if he would sign him a grant for a crore of rupees to be collected on his subjects, he, Scindia, would depose his father, and make him King. The Prince wrote back, that he had "his bellyful of rice and curry, and could not think of being made King, whilst his father was alive, and prisoner too; and that most probably, if he was to go to Delhi, Scindia would make a prisoner of him also."

Extract of a letter from London, Aug. 15.

"The Ministry having determined on the case of Mrs Nicholson, and set agoing the necessary addresses theron, had put themselves quite out of all manner of business, until the arrival of dispatches from Sir James Harris, our Ambassador at the Hague, which contain such intelligence as to render the meeting of a Cabinet Council this evening, at Whitehall, highly expedient. The friends of Ministry give out, that there is no prospect of matters being accommodated in Holland, without the interference of his Britannic Majesty and the King of Prussia, whose direct and immediate co-operation for that purpose is, it is said, to be immediately required.

"Lord Dorchester is detained in town, for the end of carrying out with him the determination of Government respecting a demand of Congress for our rendering up some forts, &c. agreeable to treaty, and the with-holding of which has been used as a pretext for refusing the payment of debts due to individuals, who have many great and legal claims on America.

"The account of a cook being stabbed by a young gentleman of a certain great family, although, as was supposed would be the case, positively denied, is nevertheless founded in truth. It happened about three weeks ago, and the man is in a fair way of doing well.

"It certainly is a fact that may be relied on, that the crop of sugar this year in Jamaica has been remarkably bad, and that not above one third of the ships coming home from that place will be freighted with any of that article, and those by no means equal to what was expected.

"It may be depended upon that Parliament will meet early in November. Some of the Minister's friends have already been assured of it."

Lady Eliza Hope, daughter of James Earl of Hopetoun, died at Spithhead on the 14th inst.

Adam Cunningham Durham, Esq; of Bonington, died here on Monday last.

At Alloa, the 14th current, died the Rev. Mr William Moncrieff, minister of the gospel there, and Professor of Divinity, during the course of 24 years, for the Associate Synod. He lived beloved and revered by all; and his death is deeply and sincerely regretted.

Yesterday afternoon, the congratulatory address of the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council of this city, was sent off by express to London.

We understand, that the Lord Provost and Magistrates, in order to preserve the uniformity and beauty of the New Town, which some builders, by acting contrary to the regulations laid down for that purpose, have in a great measure frustrated, are determined to put a stop to such practices. To effectuate this, orders have been given by the Dean of Guild and his Council to stop all buildings which are now carrying on, contrary to these regulations, and to oblige the builders to conform strictly to them.

This day, the Magistrates sentenced James MacLellan to be whipped through the streets of this city on Wednesday the 30th instant, for returning from banishment. He was whipt through the City, along with other two boys, by sentence of the Sheriff, to late as Thursday last.

On Wednesday, the 16th current, Colonel Alexander Stewart of Aflow was unanimously elected Member of Parliament for the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, in place of Peter Johnstone, Esq; of Garfalloch, who has vacated. It is remarkable that, except on the present occasion, there has always been a contest for the representation of this stewardry for upwards of forty years.

The Rev. Mr William Cameron was, on Thursday last, ordained minister of the united parishes of Kirknewton and East Calder.

Thursday evening came on at London the election of the Governor and Directors of the "British Society for extending the Fisheries and improving the Sea Coasts of the kingdom," lately incorporated by act of Parliament, when the following Noblemen and Gentlemen were appointed:

The Duke of Argyll, Governor.

sence of such an electrical shock, and I wish, for the sake of my country, that we may not, in this critical season, have too much rain."

Extract of a letter from Pinnaclehill, Aug. 8.

"Last Friday morning, between the hours of two and three, I was awaked out of a profound sleep by the bed shaking under me, and a noise in the room from the rattling of the table, chairs, and other furniture, which I can attribute to nothing else but the shock of an earthquake, as I instantly arose to see if any person was going about the house, but found no one a stir; all was quiet. I then looked out at the window, and I think it was as serene and still a morning as ever I beheld; not a breath of wind to be heard, but quite a dead calm. The concussion, seemed to me, after I awoke, to continue more than a second, and to take its direction from E. to W."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Giffland, Aug. 11.

We were this morning exceedingly alarmed by a shock of an earthquake. All who were asleep were awakened by a violent tremulous noise which shook the house, beds, doors, and window-shutters.

When it happened, which was about twelve minutes after two o'clock, I was quite awake, and had been so for some time. The tremulous noise, which lasted many seconds, appeared to me similar to what I have often felt on great discharge of cannon at a distance, and in some seconds after, the shock followed, and made the beds, &c. tremble and move. A little more, I am persuaded, would have brought down the house. It was felt for several miles round some of the country people say they found their beds shake violently under them, and looked upon it as enchantment, having no idea of an earthquake. The shock was from north to south. The weather for some days has been very close and warm, with rain. At the time of the shock it rained violently, but no lightning or thunder. The state of the air was very peculiar this morning about the time of the shock; several rush lights in the room went out, and it was with difficulty they would burn for some time afterwards."

Extract of a letter from Kirkcudbright, Aug. 14.

"On Friday last, about three o'clock in the morning, a smart shock of an earthquake was felt here by many inhabitants of this town. Tables, beds, and chests of drawers, and even whole houses were received to be sensibly affected by the shock. Happily, through a divine interposition, no fatal accident happened; but at Whitehaven the concussion was more strongly, and its effects were more violent.

It is said that some stacks of chimneys were thrown down, and the walls of several houses were split, and the people that were in their beds thrown out, and some of them much bruised.

"Immediately before the shock, a prodigious noise was heard by our people, resembling the rattling thunder at some distance. The Thursday evening which preceded the concussion was remarkably dry, still, and sultry; the atmosphere seemed to be much condensed with heat as to render breathing difficult; a thick fog came from the south-west, which increased in density till next morning, when the shock was felt. From the accounts I have got, the shocks extended a considerable way along the coast, so far it penetrated into the interior part of the country, I have not as yet been informed."

Extract of a letter from Glasgow, Aug. 17.

"On Friday last, at a little past two o'clock in the morning, a slight shock of an earthquake was felt, in different parts of the town, by several persons who happened to be awake at that still hour, and who mentioned it, and described its circumstances the day previous to the arrival of corresponding accounts from the south country.

"About five minutes after the clock had struck the first quarter of two in the morning, a gentleman, lodging in the north side of the College-court, whilst in bed, and fully awake, found his attention excited by a low rumbling noise, seemingly very distant, which lasted about three seconds, and which was repeated twice afterwards, at very short intervals. This was presently followed by another very common and much louder noise, which seemed to come from the waistcoat of the north side of the room, as if occasioned by some great heavy soft body rubbing violently against the panels in a cross direction. A similar noise was heard, at the same time, by another gentleman on the first floor, though in either case there was felt any concussion.

"In a house, however, near to the head of the town, and in another a little above the Cross, a tremulous motion accompanied the shock, which a good alarmist thought he felt it. In the house at the College, as well as at another house at Greenhead, the tame birds in cages were thrown into great惊异, or fluttering, just at the time the other symptoms of the shock were most remarkable. The weather at this time was very still and mild, with an uniform cloudiness all around."

A gentleman at Grangemouth observing, on Sunday last, that the partitions of his house were much rattled or shaken, could not think how they came to be so. After reading, however, the various accounts of the shock of an earthquake, which was so universally felt yesterday evening, he has no doubt that these appearances must have been occasioned by the earthquake.

The above earthquake was distinctly felt by several persons at Inveresk, Musselburgh, and most plainly in the neighbourhood.

A correspondent has favoured us with the following note of earthquakes that have been felt in Great Britain within the last 100 years.

In 1689. Lime, in Dorsetshire, nearly destroyed. was felt in France and Germany.

Sept. 8. 1692. In most parts of England, but not any accident. Same day one happened at St. Royal, in Jamaica, which destroyed 3000 people, and sunk part of the town.

Oct. 10. 1731. At Aynho, in Northamptonshire.

Oct. 25. 1734. At Arundel and Shrebham.

Dec. 10. 1738. One was felt in Halifax, Eland, and Huddersfield, in Yorkshire.

Feb. 5. 1744. Several shocks in Merionethshire,

Wales, which greatly alarmed the people, but did no damage.

June 15. 1745. In Somersetshire.

Feb. 14. 1749. At Leadhills, in Scotland, when the people were so affrighted that they left their houses.

Feb. 8. 1750. In London and Westminster, and many of the adjacent towns and villages. The gentlemen of the long robe in Westminster-hall were so alarmed, that they expected the building to fall; so few if any person was going about the house, but found no one a stir; all was quiet. I then looked out at the window, and I think it was as serene and still a morning as ever I beheld; not a breath of wind to be heard, but quite a dead calm. The confusion, seemed to me, after I awoke, to continue more than a second, and to take its direction from E. to W."

The lands in general are well inclosed, and some of them subdivided. The estate of Maxwelton is valued in cumulo: to the valuation of the different lots above mentioned cannot at present be mentioned with certainty; but a scheme dividing the valuations is made up, upon principles which, it is thought, will be approved of.

The teinds of the whole lands above mentioned are valued, and will be sold along with the lands, excepting only the teinds of the lands in lot 4th, lying in the parish of Dunfore, which were valued so far back as the year 634, and are exhausted, or nearly so, by the stipend paid to the minister.

The rental of the lands is in the hands of Commissary Goldie at Dumfries. A copy of it, with the current leases, and the plans and measurement of the lands, together with the title-deeds, which are perfectly clear, and the articles of sale, are in the hands of William Campbell writer to the signet, to whom any person inclining to purchase at the roup, or wishing to make a private bargain, may apply for further particulars. The tenants will show the lands.

The time and place of the sale of the Lands of CARFIN, in the neighbourhood of Hamilton, and of the Superiority of the Lands of Ladyside and others, which affords a freehold qualification in Ayrshire, will be mentioned in a future advertisement.

For particulars apply to Joseph Cauvin, writer to the signet, who will show the title-deeds, plans, and rentals of the lands.
